

Danielle Prichard

Dr. Christian

DSPW 0800

December 6, 2004

My thoughts on Harry Potter

I really enjoyed the book. I want to read the rest of Harry's books. I love how someone can capture the thought of magical world, and make it feel so real, and interesting. Harry is a character like no other. I can really stand reading about him and relating to some of the issue's he is going through in his wild and dangerous adventures.

This book starts off talking about how a child's family dies in a car accident. That is not the case at all. This young boy, named Harry Potter is a wizard and he dose not know it yet. He lives with his aunt and uncle. They told Harry that his family died in car accident, because they can't stand the magic world and all the witchcraft and wizardry that goes with it. Their behavior towards poor Harry is one of a bad step mother or father whom despises the child. Harry is forced to live in a cupboard under the stairs.

Harry eventually finds out he is wizard and goes off to Hogwarts, school of witchcraft and wizardry. He meets Ron Wesley, and Hermione Granger along the way, they become very close friends.

This book is full of made up magic and interesting ideas. I love how all of it comes together. I do look forward to reading the rest of the Harry Potter books.